EXECUTIVE LETTER

Kaiser Permanente was founded nearly 75 years ago on the belief that good health can be accessible and affordable to all. Today, our 217,000 employees and nearly 23,000 Permanente Medical Group physicians and clinicians continue to deliver on our mission – providing high-quality, affordable health care and improving the health of our members and the communities we serve.

Our doctors, hospitals, and health plan work together as an integrated health care system with a shared commitment to keeping our members healthy and restoring them to health after injury or illness. Our technology connects care teams, including primary care doctors, specialists, nurses, lab and radiology technicians, pharmacists, and therapists – enabling seamless collaboration and coordinated care for faster diagnosis, treatment, and recovery. Researchers at our 8 regional research centers study diseases and health services to improve health outcomes and advance medical science. Through our electronic health record system, we are continually discovering new ways to improve care delivery and share breakthroughs with speed and efficiency.

Our commitment to creating more healthy years for more people extends beyond our members to the communities where they live. As a nonprofit organization, in 2018 we gave nearly $2.8 billion to support community health, including nearly $2.5 billion dedicated to providing health services to people most in need. We started an important conversation about the social determinants of health with a $200 million investment through our Thriving Communities Fund to address homelessness and the affordability of housing, and we announced our goal to achieve carbon neutrality by 2020. We also sought answers to one of our greatest societal issues by taking the lead in researching ways to prevent gun injuries and death, committing $2 million to the effort.

At the same time, we invested significant resources in advancing mental health care and reducing stigma. We view mental health from a total health perspective, and our primary care and mental health providers work together to make mental health and wellness an important part of a patient’s total health. In 2018, this meant more than 4 million specialty mental health and addiction medicine visits across Kaiser Permanente. And our teams are pioneering new technology and measurement tools to improve mental health care in the U.S.

We also advocated for key policies in the areas of universal coverage, drug pricing, and access to affordable high-quality mental health care. And we did all of this while delivering industry-leading clinical excellence and quality outcomes for our patients and members.
With 42 No. 1 rankings in National Committee for Quality Assurance quality measures, 30 hospitals rated “high-performing” by highly respected rating organizations, awards for excellence in medication safety and appropriate use, and health plans that have been top-rated year after year, we proudly delivered care and coverage to 12.2 million Americans in 2018, including 400,000 new members.

We continue to offer high-touch and high-tech experiences that combine compassionate care with innovative capabilities. Our members appreciate the convenience of care delivered through technology – in 2018, they filled 31 million prescriptions online, viewed nearly 54 million lab results virtually, and had hundreds of thousands of telehealth visits with our skilled clinicians. Our goal continues to be improving care and service, and we are always learning how best to integrate technology into patient visits.

Coming to work at Kaiser Permanente is a privilege because we get to help our members, patients, and the people in our communities live more healthy years. At this pivotal moment in our nation’s discussion about health and health care, it is our responsibility to embrace all our strengths – our legacy, our people, our model, our technology, and our investments in community health – to lead the way toward high-quality health care at a price people can afford.

Our Annual Report tells the story of the progress we’ve made in delivering high-quality, accessible, affordable care and coverage, and the impact we have on improving the health of our members and the communities we serve.

QUALITY

Our high-quality care, collaborative approach, and health outcomes set a bold standard for the industry and vision for the future.

We deliver safe, high-quality care centered on the people we serve. We strive to deepen our understanding of our patients’ needs and preferences, and deliver the right care, at the right time, in the right setting. The value of this approach is reflected in our clinical scores, safety grades, and member satisfaction ratings, which are consistently among the industry’s highest. In doing our work, we recognize that health is about more than physical health but is about body, mind, and spirit. As we do our work at Kaiser Permanente, we are dedicated to measuring our performance based on that understanding.

As leaders in prevention, diagnosis, and treatment, our highly-skilled teams use evidence-based methods and leading-edge technology to improve care, from the simplest to the most complicated health conditions.

As a trusted partner, we combine clinical excellence and innovation with strict discipline around quality, safety, and access to help ensure patients benefit from advanced practices that are effective, equitable, and safe. As an integrated, nonprofit organization, we make ongoing investments in technology and facilities that deliver on our commitment to high-quality, affordable, and accessible care.

We help our members live healthy and engaged lives, and focus on providing high-quality care everywhere and every time people interact with Kaiser Permanente.

Kaiser Permanente was born from a transformational idea for health care. That rich legacy continues to drive our passion for creative thinking and big ideas to advance care and deliver better outcomes. We lead the way to innovate in the rapidly evolving health care environment to help our members and patients live healthier lives.

Kaiser Permanente is an innovation leader. As one of the nation’s largest and most productive research institutions with one of the world’s largest medical data sets and our advanced digital technology, we are in the forefront of delivering proactive health care for healthier lives.

Our digital technology is transforming care and the member experience. In acute care settings, life-saving early warning signs are identified through Advanced Alert Monitor and Rapid Response Teams. We can also use our data and predictive modeling to help identify patterns and early warning signs in individuals who may be contemplating suicide.

On kp.org, our digital technology provides ready access to telephone and video visits*, lab results, prescription orders, and bill payments, and the ability to exchange secure emails with your doctor’s office and other departments. More than half of all member and patient interactions are now conducted online. In 2018, 64% of all visits to kp.org were from mobile devices – nearly 199 million visits.

COMMUNITY

We collaborate with our communities and engage our entire organization to improve health.

We understand that good health begins beyond the walls of our doctors’ offices and hospitals. It begins in our communities with stable and affordable housing, meaningful work and good jobs, successful schools, clean air and water, nourishing foods in neighborhood stores, and safe places to exercise and play.

As a mission-based nonprofit, we are committed to ensuring that everyone has access to good health and quality health care. That means improving conditions for health and equity in our communities and exploring new approaches to solving community health problems. We do this through strategic investments in our communities, research and clinical expertise, our influence as a major purchaser and employer, and the passion of our physician and employee volunteers.
